

New Pilgrim Path Website of the Week

"Original goodness is our first nature, it is the first gift of life to all. Original sin is our second nature, not original at all! Read the birth poem in the first chapter of the Bible. It's all about the divine goodness in which the world is set. Each day of creation in the poem is good. Light is good. Dark is good. Sea is good. Wild things are good. Every living thing that moves on the face of the earth is very good." These words are from an uplifting, engaging and deeply human talk by the late David Wood, Anglican priest from the Northwest of England and ambassador for the ecumenical Christian meditation movement. Listen to his series of inspiring short talks at www.newpilgrimpath.ie.

Drinking the Cup

One of the images the Bible uses for life is that of a cup. Just as a cup may be filled with a bitter-sweet drink, so the life of each of us could be said to be a mixture of the sweet and the bitter. It's a rich and powerful image.

As well as standing for life as a whole, it can stand for a particular segment of life. Thus, there may be times when the cup of life is full of bitterness. It may be so bitter that we don't want to drink it, or feel we are not able to drink it. But at other times the cup may be over-flowing with sweetness. At such times we can't get enough of it. And at still other times the cup may be flat and tasteless. Finally, there may be times when the cup of life is empty.

We don't know in advance what the cup of life holds for us. We find out as we go along. Jesus, the Innocent One, chose to drink a very bitter cup. But, as we have seen, he didn't find it easy. Yet he drank it to the dregs. And did so out of love for us. Love can make a bitter cup drinkable. If we find the cup of life particularly bitter, there is no need for us to pretend that it is sweet, or to think that we can drink it by our own strength. Unlike the apostles, let us not be afraid or ashamed to say, 'No, Lord, I can't drink it. I don't want to drink it. But if I have to, then with your help I will.'

To drink the cup of life, especially a cup made difficult by a life of sacrifice and service of others, is to follow Christ. But those who share the bitterness of his cross will also share the sweetness of his Easter victory.
