Eighth Sunday in Ordinary Time, Year C, 2nd March, 2025. Bulletin No: 1557

Why do you observe the splinter in your brother's eye and never notice the plank in your own?

It's easy to see the faults of another, but a psychological wall prevents us from seeing our own faults. We can be blind to certain facts about ourselves which are perfectly clear to anyone who has ever lived in the same house with us or worked in the same office.

One of the main things that blind us to our own faults is a preoccupation with the faults of others. How anxious we are to correct others. Without realising it, we can become faultfinders and critics. But critics are not the ones who reform the world.

Jesus tells us to take the beam out of our own eye first, and then we can think about removing the splinter from our neighbour's eye. In other words we must put our own house in order first before daring to try to put someone else's house in order

We need to listen to ourselves, to look at ourselves, and then correct what needs to be corrected. True religion tries to make oneself better. If someone wants to be of the greatest possible value to his fellow creatures, let him begin the long, solitary task of perfecting himself.
