Who is my Neighbour?

The Jewish lawyer's question, "Who is my neighbour?" gives Jesus the opportunity to confront the old hostility which existed between the Jews and the Samaritans. As John says in his Gospel: "Jews have no dealings with Samaritans."

For the traditional Jew, to love one's neighbour was understood as loving someone who belonged to the Jewish community. A neighbour was someone within the boundaries of your own racial and religious circle. To love outsiders while rejecting their beliefs was totally alien to their tradition.

Jesus' story tells of three travellers on the same road who see the same naked and wounded man by the roadside. The question is: how are they going to react to what they see? Will their seeing oblige them to act? Two Jewish officials, a priest and a Levite, continue their journey as if the purpose of living is to hurry on. At this point in the story, the hearers were probably expecting the hero to be an Israelite. But the shock to the system is that the hero is a despised Samaritan, the one who is publicly cursed in synagogues. He is the one Jesus holds up as the neighbour in the kingdom of God.. He is the one who went beyond the limits of religion to extend the boundary of compassion.
