Just five months since its publication last May, Pope Leo's first encyclical - on artificial intelligence (AI) - has proven extraordinarily far-seeing. New Pilgrim Path has come across a comprehensive and very accessible overview of the encyclical from the website of Ascension Press, a highly regarded American publisher and digital media company specializing in Catholic faith formation material. Access it here: www.newpilgrimpath.ie

Two Sons

The Gospel challenges a common temptation: to believe that saying the right thing is enough. It reminds us that faith is not simply about words, intentions or appearances. What matters is the response that follows.

Jesus speaks of the importance of doing God's will, even when this requires a change of heart. Sometimes a person may hesitate, refuse or take the wrong path, but later recognise what is right and choose to act. This reminds us that God does not give up on anyone. There is always an opportunity to turn around, begin again and live differently.

The Christian life is not about getting everything right. It is about being willing to listen to God and allowing his word to change the way life is lived. A genuine response to the Gospel will gradually be seen in our choices, relationships and treatment of others.

Each day brings opportunities to put faith into practice: forgiving someone, helping a neighbour, showing patience, encouraging someone who is struggling, or giving time to those who feel forgotten.

The Gospel calls for more than good intentions. It calls for a faith that becomes visible through action. When words and actions come together, God's love can be seen in everyday life.
